10 Reasons why Australia MUST cancel its treaties with the WHO

1. Health Minister Butler's endorsement of the WHO's 2024 International Health Regulations (IHRs) and his support of the Pandemic Agreement is inappropriate because:
    - consultation with Australians about these documents has been woefully inadequate
    - nevertheless, many Australians objected to the treaties
    - 14 members of parliament objected to the treaties
    - Australian politicians and agencies were not given 4 months to consider the finished wording of the IHRs and their implications for Australia, as required under international law
    - to consider the finished wording of the IHRs and their implications for Australia.

2. The treaties will cost Australia billions of dollars annually.

3. The treaties empower the Director of the WHO to declare a pandemic, even with no evidence of an actual emergency. This leads to the activation of emergency laws in Australia that grant extraordinary power to health bureaucrats at the expense of normal democratic processes.

4. Emergency powers will enable our politicians and public agencies to follow the WHO's lead and restrict Australians' freedom by:
    - imposing lockdowns
    - enforcing travel restrictions
    - censoring scientific debate
    - incarcerating Australians
    - imposing medical treatments on Australians, or
    - implementing any other measure the WHO deems appropriate.

5. The WHO's approach to pandemic management in the Covid-19 epidemic – featuring lockdowns, masks, and travel restrictions – was grossly flawed.

6. Implementing the WHO's approach to pandemic management in the Covid-19 epidemic created an economic and humanitarian crisis in Australia.

7. The WHO is neither an independent nor an impartial body, and as such it is unfit to make decisions about health.

8. The WHO is indemnified from liability for harm, further disqualifying it from making decisions about health.

9. These treaties have ongoing application and lengthy withdrawal periods, making them very difficult to get out of once we are committed.

10. The treaties establish a mechanism whereby we would be giving the WHO an alarming degree of undue influence over the Australian government and its people.
